- You should take all your regular medications except for those mentioned above. If you must take your medications, do so with as little water as possible. ### AFTER YOUR PROCEDURE

- It is not unusual to have increased pain for 1-3 days after the procedure. At home, apply ice packs over the areas of injection, 20 minutes at a time, three times a day for one or two days following the procedure as needed. This can help relieve the pain/swelling at the injection sites
- Avoid strenuous exercise – even if you feel great – for at least one week.
- If you are currently in physical therapy, you may start at 5-7 days after the procedure. Have your physical therapist call your doctor regarding any questions.
- You may resume all your medications after the procedure.
- Follow-up appointment will be necessary in approximately two weeks. However, call your physician or office staff for any related problems at any time.
- You may slowly progress to your normal diet after the procedure.
- Call your doctor for temperatures greater than 101°F, or if there is persistent redness/swelling at your injection sites, excessive bleeding or drainage, persistent new weakness/numbness, loss of control of bowel/bladder function, persistent dizziness/drowsiness, blurry vision, persistent headache, or any serious concerns related to the procedure.
